PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Now I know why they call August the “dog days of summer”—because it is definitely hot as a dog! Temperatures this week will exceed 100 degrees multiple times, not including the heat index! These high temperatures can be extremely dangerous, especially for people working in the field, so it is imperative to stay hydrated with Gatorade-type products that contain electrolytes to give your body what it needs to handle the heat. Also, keep an eye on your co-workers for signs of overheating. Our employees' safety is more important than any glass job!

Our estimating departments have been busy selling jobs around the Southeast, including Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Arkansas. They have also recently quoted projects in Texas and Puerto Rico. Our backlog is still gaining momentum and is currently higher than it was this time last year. We also have multiple large projects in the works that would really move the backlog needle. Keep up the good work, guys (and gals)!

Our sister company, TSI, is also expanding its customer base throughout the country and is on track for its biggest year ever. In fact, TSI's growth has been so good that it needs a bigger facility. The current warehouse is busting at the seams with project material and inventory. That's what you call growing pains! Hopefully, we can secure our ideal location soon and get that project started. Great job, guys!

Our joint venture projects with Tull Bros and Zinsel Glass have also been great for our company, bringing not only added revenue but also a chance to learn best practices from other quality glass contractors that can benefit our company. We look forward to many more projects down the road with them!

Thanks for all the hard work each of you do to make our company what it is today. Stay cool!

Robert
